From Our Rector's Study

Greetings to All,

Paul says to the people of Corinth, “All things are lawful for me, but not all things are beneficial. All things are lawful for me, but I will not be dominated by anything.” (1Cor. 6:12)

Paul is informing the people of Corinth that as a Roman citizen he is not closely bracketed by the narrow restrictions of Jewish law. Paul however maintains his Jewish heritage and the righteousness of a life lived through the Cross of Christ.

This idea of living within the law of one's community, while also recognizing the kind of life Christ asks us to live, needs to be examined a little bit. Perhaps the best way to do this is by using an example or two. As I write this newsletter our Supreme Court is trying to decide when and if it is okay for profane language to be broadcast through our television and under what circumstances.

I recall Bill Cosby once saying that “people tend to use profanity when they are, for whatever reasons, unable to otherwise to express themselves.” I agree with Mr. Cosby and I will go a step further; I believe most people think they are impressing their listeners with curse words they think are socially acceptable. So sad. Whenever I am in a store and hear people using such language I feel offended – I don't want to be within the sound of their voice.

Having said all of that I do have a tolerance for the occasional explicative emanating from my television. I don't think it is necessary but it happens.

The federal courts allowing, or not allowing, such language has nothing to do with the self control I have in place for myself. “Many things are lawful for me, but not many things are beneficial.” This kind of righteous self-control is not limited to curse words on television.

How we dress (as revealing as the law allows): how we respond (or not required to respond) to the needs of the less fortunate is not legislated. Short of paying taxes we are not lawfully required to be charitable or for the matter, to attend church, or believe in God. Again, “All things are lawful but not all things are beneficial.”

Should we decide to live out our lives solely based on what we can get away with legally, we exercise no discipline and self control and so are slaves to public limitations. Discipline and self control are important tools for living into the righteous life we are called to in Christ. Our personal rules of life must be established and maintained. Yes, such personal rules like not cursing, dressing properly and being courteous to others takes practice. Beneficial behavior requires our self imposed limitations as well as times of action. We are called by Jesus to live lives of loving kindness. This reminds me of a related personal rule: “If you can't say something nice about someone, don't say anything at all.” I'm sure St. Paul and Mr. Cosby would agree that while this rule is not a required law, it is beneficial.

A Very Blessed and Happy New Year to all,

John +

Our Red Box Could Use a Boost!

Feed Me So that I Might Feed Others

Fayetteville Urban Ministry is still in need of donations. Now that the holidays are done, it is even more important to remember those who are living homeless and in distressed circumstances.

Of particular need are moderate servings of canned meats (canned fish. SPAM, canned chicken/ham salad, Vienna sausages) peanut butter, packaged snacks, canned fruits or pudding cups. It needs to be something easy to open and simple to eat. Also, new men's and ladies socks for this cold weather.

Bring in your donations, and the Jacksons will see that they get to the Fayetteville Urban Ministry.

A Message from the Stewardship Chair,

Janz Crabill

Have you made a New Year's resolution to become more active in St. Paul's In-the-Pines? Time, talent and treasure forms are available in the parish hall to be filled out and returned if you haven't already submitted them. Thank you notes for those who turned in a financial pledge prior to January have been mailed out. If you didn't receive a thank you card but believe you have submitted a pledge, please speak to Jane Crabill. As the new year began, we were only about halfway to meeting an annual budget with written pledges.

We need more parish members to sign up to help with worship services, fundraisers, setting up before and cleaning up after social events, reaching out to visitors, working with Cindi and our youth group, etc. Father John can't do it alone and neither can the Vestry. Please fill out the time and talent sheets or speak to a vestry member about where you are called to contribute.

Faithfully,

Jane Crabill, Stewardship Chair

A WORSHIP NEW YEAR

By the time you receive this newsletter we will have begun a new church year with the Advent season, celebrated the birth of our Lord Jesus Christ, had an Epiphany service and party with Lenten planning already lurking in the back of our minds. A belated, but no less heartfelt, THANK YOU to all of the Worship support folks who made the Christmas services go smoothly. More kudos to all who worked so diligently gathering and making the greens to bedeck the church so beautifully! These things don't just happen. It takes much planning and dedication from the making of soup and sloppy joes to feed those hungry from the energy expended gathering and making the greens, making sure all the supplies were on hand, climbing ladders to get the greens hung to sweeping/cleaning the parish hall and church. Gail Brown was one of the shepherds, along with lots of help. Please take time to seek out those who participated and share your compliments for a task well done. Plan now to join us next year to prune Food Lion shrubbery, make wreaths, hang bows and greens and enjoy a truly wonderful adventure, There are opportunities for every available hand---no expertise required.

If you would be interested in a training session for how to be Worship support for Morning Prayer please email Jan Peters or sign up in the parish hall. Also if you are currently on the Worship Support list please let me know ASAP your February availability schedule. Please check the February newsletter for more details about Lent.

Words

Happy 2012, everyone!

It's amazing how long ago it seems that it was 2011! A week and two major holidays make such a difference.

We're gearing up for the new year here at the church, and that means some changing of files, making of plans, and hopes for prosperity for our little church to move forward.

Our new Vestry has been gracious about keeping me informed so that I can pass along information to all of you. And if I don't know something, I will try to find out, so please don't hesitate to ask a question.

We'll be celebrating St. Paul's-in-the-Pines's birthday later this month, complete with Parish meeting, food, and gifts. Elsewhere in this issue you will find our Birthday Wish List. And remember, this is the 48th birthday. 50 is just around the corner, with all the brouhaha we can pull together to celebrate 50 years as a church.

We're also seeking information on computer software at a discounted rate. (It must be legal!) Some of you know I've taken over the church's web site as one of my duties. It is still in a state of transition as I implement changes we've discussed. Allan Aycock did such a good job, we are not altering much, more like adding to and updating it.

However, that means we need certain software. Currently I am doing much of this with my own software at my house, because I have what I need there. Eventually we will need to get software for St. Paul's-in-the-Pines. It will be newer than mine, and it will belong to the church, so that whoever is the webmaster will have the necessary access. (Don't worry, I like doing this, so I'm not looking to turn it over to anyone else until I leave – which is some vague someday, not now.)

We will ultimately need a program that allows us to scan and modify images and one to help create the web pages. We already have a program that will deliver the pages to the web hosting service. There are other programs that add bells and whistles, but these two are the basics, and they cost enough. So, we're looking for discounts, or even legitimate, license-transferred software that is no older than 2009. If anyone has knowledge of any, please contact me at the office, 485-7098.

That's pretty much all the business news from the office, but I may have some surprises for you next time.

Blessings Robin the PA

News

I'm so thankful—We're going to be busy, busy,

Yes, We Are!

- Fundraisers — besides the two advertised in this newsletter, we're looking at planning more fun activities to raise funds for the church this year. Got ideas? Bring 'em in — and build on your excitement to help make it happen! Consider crafts sales, different dinners/cookouts, yard sales — anything to appeal to people and engage the community.
- Convention is just around the corner, February 3 - 4. Our delegates, Fr. John, Bill West, Saran Maclean-Hasinger, and Morgan Pettigrew are ready to go. Robert Belton is also ready to step in as alternate if he's needed. If you have any questions about the experience, Fr. John, Morgan, Leslie Flom, and Jonathan Frantz have been before.
- The church birthday, as mentioned elsewhere, is the last Sunday of this month. There will be an all-parish meeting then, too. In tune with that, since preparations will need to be made for our 50th birthday celebration, we're looking at projects necessary to spruce up the buildings and grounds, such as the new gravel in the parking lot. Ideas, solutions, and volunteers are always needed.

(You get to hear from me twice this month!)

Over the holidays, we had a few days when all the kids were home. Our married daughter and her husband came in from Nashville, our second daughter came down from New York City, and the twins were off from college. Add in the two sons who are currently with us and visits from the two boyfriends, and we had a pretty steady household!

Naturally we had a lot of conversations about people's plans, philosophies, and futures. I was struck by the mix we had. Of course, with that many people present, finding variety wasn't too surprising. However, the interesting part to me was that things sort of fell into three categories with intersections, but within those parameters, there were wide differences.

One of the categories was religious. By this I mean that several of the people are closely affiliated with their chosen faith. They study it, participate in it, and run their lives based on it. Another category was service, as several of our family members are either professionally or personally involved in service to others. These two categories intersect. As does the third, which is communication, the other area that was oft-discussed.

Being from one family, there were many similar viewpoints, but often they were supported and fueled by differing sources. That led to some

Baked Ziti!

This month's Baked Ziti fundraiser will have more organization and a few changes.

It is scheduled for January 26th.

Lunch take -out/delivery will be from 11am 'til 3pm . Dinner, which is dine-in/take-out, will run from 5pm 'til 8pm.

We will have better iced tea and an improved take-out set- up.

New and better TICKETS ARE READY NOW

We will still need help with set-up on the afternoon of the 25th, then cooking am and pm shifts on the 26th delivery/take-out. preparation on the 26th, evening cashier , dining room servers and clean-up of the 26th.

We hope to have "LIVE MUSIC" and some craft items for sale during dinner. With luck – and volunteers — window tours might be set up also.

WE WANT PEOPLE to come to a fundraiser dinner and have a good time and food and enjoy the fellowship of St. Paul's-in-the-Pines.

Please call Penny (864-2002) or Larry (864-6914) to sign up to join the crew and/or get tickets.

Please hurry, we need you now.

We're always being asked "What do you want for your birthday?"

Whether a church or an individual, people want to know what would make a good gift. So, we've come up with a list of things we know the church could use. Of course, we'll appreciate and put to use anything we get.

Here's a few ideas:

- ◆ Coffee
- ◆ Kleenex
- ◆ Kool Aid
- ◆ Pastel printer paper for those special occasions (8 1/2x11 or 8 1/2x14 in size)
- ◆ Scotch tape for dispensers
- ◆ Pentel EnerGel Pens — black/blue/red

....and anything else you think the church could use.

Thank you, church family,

hearty discussions. That is what gave me pause. (I know I'm being very general here, but that's for brevity.)

I realized from all these discussions that there is diversity of a much different kind than we normally talk about. It's a diversity I see at St. Paul's-in-the-Pines: diversity of belief. It's something you don't often see sitting comfortably with people who are very conservative or fundamental in their faith. Instead it seems to be more prevalent in the older, mainstream religions. People within a given denomination tend to believe the same general things, but there are details and nuances that differ, philosophies and backgrounds that inform their thoughts in different ways, leading them to ponder different possibilities.

This is why we have Bible study, for the exploration and discussion of the possibilities. Rather than approaching it individually, with only one perspective, group study allows for conversations, combining of ideas, sorting out of interpretations. It's what I hear the ladies refer to happily on Tuesdays when they come in for Women's Bible Study. It's what I hear sometimes from members of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, too.

Now, I can imagine many of you nodding your heads, thinking, 'well, of course!' But I just wanted to share that I've seen this kind of diversity at St. Paul's, as well as all the other diversities we enjoy.

When I was interviewed for Parish Administrator, the very first thing Fr. John asked me was how I felt about working with a church that was intentionally celebratory about their diversity. I have to admit it was an entirely unexpected question. As he further explained it, however, I was happy to answer that I was comfortable with it. What I should have said was that I wouldn't have it any other way.

Blessings, Robin the PA
